

Do it right from the start

Inspection Support

Inspections help to minimize the risk of defective assets by ensuring they meet company and industry standards as well as government regulations prior the defect or anomaly becoming dangerous . It is standard practice that these inspections are performed in accordance with the applicable standards.

Apart from the technical integrity, many other factors and parameters are equally important to be aware of your asset and required from reliability stand point of view. Factors like operational integrity, process controls (instrumentation), fire safety, installed preventive measures or legal requirements are often neglected within the scope of inspections. This is the reason that after an inspection asset owners can still have questions like, but not limitative:

- Did I cover all the required (NDT) inspections?
- Do I have to perform additional NDT - and if so, why was I not informed during the actual inspection?
- What do I need to do with my instrumentation?
- How do I need to repair it and is the repair really needed?
- What is the most cost-effective way to return the asset safely to operation?

Verantio offers an independent inspection support to asset owners, manufacturers, retailers, traders and governments to assure that your assets are operating safely (goal zero) and reliable. By working together with you and the (local) inspection contractor, we help to identify non-standard or non-compliant items and minimize the out-of-service time (LEAN) of your asset.

We have the inspection knowledge, the engineering talent and practical experience to provide you with a full range of services, such as:

- Inspection & Test Plans (ITPs)
- Inspections in accordance with API653, EEMUA159, API570 and/or API510
- Supervision or coordination of inspections.
- Check for non-compliances and the required repairs based on the inspection results.
- Develop specific inspection procedures (L3) or written instructions (L2) conform EN473/ISO9712.
- Develop individual inspection guidelines for companies.
- Provide inspection training for companies.

Our support will make sure that you cover all the items which are important and critical for you as asset owner. This will help you in making a fast, confident and cost-effective decision in the process of returning your asset safely back into service.
